Introduction

1.1 Project explanation

The project aims at designing and developing a complete, functional e-commerce website for a store dealing in all kinds of watches. It shall be able to let users view different collections, read relevant blog posts about the watch industry, view details of any product, and interact with functional forms for user engagement. The website will be designed to be user-friendly, responsive and accessible with emphasis on seamless navigation and interaction.

The site will be developed using HTML, CSS and JavaScript, leveraging each technology in the development of a well-structured, nice looking and interactive platform. Some of the major features on the website will include product pages showing detailed specifications of watches, a blog discussing trends in the watch industry and forms for customer interaction such ad contact forms and subscription forms.

1.2 Goals and objectives

The goals of this project are:

- The website should provide for e-commerce where one can view watch products and interact with them.
- There should be a blog to communicate with visitors where the user would discuss various things about watches or watch improvements.
- The design and layout of this website must meet modern web design standards.
- For dynamic functionality, this website needs JavaScript for form validation, filtering of products shown, and the updating of page content.

Specific Objectives:

1. Designing a clean, modern website structure by using HTML5 and CSS3.
2. Implementing interactive features that provide form validation, pop-ups, and dynamic updating of content using JavaScript.
3. The website should be functional, at least with 5 web pages: Home page, Product page, Blog page, Research page, and About Us page.
4. Design a research section that analyzes the effect of technology in the watch industry, with references from other e-commerce platforms.
5. Include functional forms such as a subscription form and a contact form that will be validated using JavaScript.

1.3 Use of HTML, CSS and JavaScript

1.3.1 HTML

HTML stands for Hypertext Markup Language, and it is a standard for creating and formatting information over the web. It can define the structure of web pages through various types of elements such as headings, paragraphs, links, images, and form items. Through it, the structure should be provided regarding how to organize content to provide semantic formatting for the webpage that must be accessible and navigable for its users.

1.3.2 CSS

CSS stands for Cascading Style Sheets. It is most frequently used to specify the web-page's presentation, such as selection of colors, layout, fonts, etc. CSS explains the style of HTML- elements; they are to be displayed on displays, in print, or in other media. Use of CSS saves a lot of time. The designs of multiple web pages can be controlled at once with its use. The external style sheets are kept in CSS files. The Cascading Style Sheets was Hakon Wium Lie in 1994 Kumar, 2023).

1.3.3 JavaScript

With the programming language JavaScript, you may create dynamically updated information, control multimedia, animate visuals, and pretty much anything else. It's amazing what a few lines of JavaScript code can accomplish (well, maybe not everything). If we focus on it, Java script is an object-based, platform-independent script language that is easy to learn. It was initially developed for use with Netscape 2, and in 1997 the ECMA-262 standard adopted it. Brendan Eich designed JavaScript in 1995 (W3Schools, 2023).

1.3 Verdict

The aim of this website is to develop an integrated and interactive online shopping experience for customers in search of different types of watches. Our instructor guided our group in trying to meet all the technical and design requirements outlined in the coursework. We have tried to create a platform that emphasizes user experience, accessibility, and functionality by using HTML, CSS and JavaScript. Our goal is to make the website both attractive anf user friendly, where the customer will have an easy right from the selection of an item up to making the purchase.

2. Discussion and analysis

2.1 Selected text editor

2.1.1 Visual Studio Code:

Visual Studio Code is a free, accessible, and free-code editor developed by Microsoft. It can run on Windows, macOS, and Linux. We chose to use it for our project because it is quick, easy, and has a lot of useful tools.

Main features:

- Smart Code Editing: Using recommendations and auto-completion, you can write code quicker.
- Easy Debugging: Allows you to quickly detect and repair issues in your code.
- Supports several languages: It supports HTML, CSS, JavaScript, Python, and other programming languages.
- Color-Coded Code: By using various colors for distinct areas, code may be more easily read.
- Keyboard shortcuts allow you to work quicker by employing rapid key commands.
- Version Control: Built-in facilities for managing changes to your code.

We picked Visual Studio Code because it is easy, quick, and powerful. It simplified coding and helped us remain

2.2 Selected tools for wireframe

2.2.1 Balsamiq Wireframe:

It is a web-based user interface design tool, sometimes referred to as a mockup or a low-fidelity prototype, that is used to create the wireframe for a website. The wireframe makes the overall layout of the website clear, which makes it easier for programmers to understand the website's main layout. Balsamiq wireframe was first introduced in 2008 (balsamiq, 2023).

We utilized the design tool prior to beginning the coding since it would be simple to grasp the website's layout after the wireframe has been created. We then divided up our work and completed the course work.

2.3 Wireframe of pages used on the website

2.3.1 Wireframe of Home page

This page represents a comprehensive webpage for "Nova times" an online watch store. It includes the basic information about the e-commerce website. Its layout is structured with a header, main body, and footer sections. It features a clear navigation bar providing easy access to key sections like the Product Page, Blog, About Us, and Research.

This is the wireframe of the home page in our website which looks like this below in the picture:

2.3.2 Wireframe of product page

The product page displays various watches with name, price, information, and availability. There is a menu for quick access to sections such as home, shop, and about us. There is a single watch displayed with photos and indepth information. There is a grouping of watches under categories such as men's, women's, luxury, and sports for quick browsing.

2.3.3 Wireframe of About us page

The About Us page of Nova Times' website describes the background, purpose, and values of the company. It introduces its founders, with a demonstration of their expertise and passion for creating watches. It mentions their dedication to quality, customer happiness, and innovation in watchmaking. It declares its intention to deliver fashionable and reliable watches for any occasion. The website is simple and concise, with a professional appearance that reflects the values and dedication of the brand towards delivering high-quality items.

2.3.7 Wireframe of research page

The Research Page compares the website of NOVA TIMES with similar websites such as Daraz, Amazon, Yokolocal, and Jeevee in a clear manner. It compares colors, menu options, footer structures, and product presentation. It is organized in a tidy manner with headings, pictures, comparisons, and tables for easier reading. There is a header and footer with significant links for site navigation, social networks, contact information, and payment, and it enables visitors to navigate and access information with ease.

4. Conclusion

The aim of this project was successfully met by developing an e-commerce website that incorporates all the features outlined in the coursework. Our website named, Nova Times, consists of five key pages: Home, Product, About us, Blog and Research. The home page introduces the store. The product page gives details of different watches including their names, prices and descriptions. The blog page talks about how technology has influenced the watch industry and consumer trends. The about us page introduces our team, while the research page compares our website with other similar platforms to show unique features.

HTML was used for structuring and CSS was used in designing to make it more attractive. JavaScript provides interactivity by adding form validations and dynamic element with various popup that enhance user experience. All the files were set in order for easy maintenance of the files.

This project helped us learn a lot about website development, most specifically in the use of HTML,CSS and JavaScript. It gave us practical experience and helped us solve real world problems whole developing the website. This project helped us enhance our technical skills and also taught us the importance of creating a user friendly website for users to enjoy.

This particular project has strengthened our ability in web development and has prepared us for the upcoming projects in the field.

        <h2>ABOUT TECHNOLOGY</h2> Technology has taken over every aspect of our lives, transforming communication, shopping, and even the appreciation of art. In recent years, there has been a significant change in the watch sector. Digital platforms have made it possible for collectors to display their works and interact with other collectors across the world in virtual marketplaces. We can now inspect watches in previously unheard details thanks to high-resolution image and video technology. More precise identification of old watches is now possible thanks to advanced testing technology.

            Soaring between earth and space, OMEGA watches have enjoyed a long history in the skies. Now, to propel that legacy further, the brand proudly launches the new Speedmaster Pilot. Aimed at a new generation of pilots in flight, this 40.85 mm design follows the very same symmetrical style of the original Speedmaster from 1957. Perhaps most eye-catching of all are the twin subdials that appear on the watch's main dial. Both indications are opaline at the centre and bevelled on the outside. The overall design is inspired by the look of aircraft cockpits and is matched by a central chronograph hand that features a varnished orange airplane tip.

              The Reverso One Duetto revisits the codes of the first feminine Reverso models, emblematic of the Art Deco style: a rectangular and elongated case, dials with contrasting aesthetics, a double set of hands turning in opposite directions while indicating the same time, gadroons adorned with two rows of brilliant-cut diamonds, alligator leather strap. On the verso of the watch, the burgundy, glitter-lacquered dial highlights the elongated hour markers, which beam like rays of sunlight. Wearable on any occasion, this model combines inimitable style with refined femininity.

            The Rolex Bubbleback is a rare timepiece in the history of watchmaking. Nicknamed for its unmistakable protruding case, this watch captures the style and imagination of the 1930s, a decade when Rolex introduced some of its most daring innovations in horology. Today the Rolex Bubbleback is coveted by serious collectors the world over – not least of all because it is still ticking. Yet the Bubbleback by Rolex is all the rarer as it was only produced for around twenty years after first appearing in 1933. The intact models seen today are evidence of the high manufacturing standards of Rolex that established the company as industry leaders.

            Vacheron Constantin concludes the 20th anniversary celebration of the Patrimony collection with a new 18K 3N yellow gold self-winding model, result of a collaboration with designer Ora ïto. Behind the designer's signature concept of "Simplexity" - the art of proposing a simple response to a complex problem, of giving a simple appearance to an object involving invisible complexity, this limited edition of 100 pieces features a monochrome aesthetic with a yellow gold case framing a tone-on-tone gold-coloured dial adorned with an infinite number of concentric circles catching the light. This visually simple, circular geometry spreading like a rippling wave echoes the cambered dial surface.

            <img src="../images/gold-watches-1.jpg" alt="vintage watch"> Technology has taken over every aspect of our lives, transforming communication, shopping and even the appreciation of art. In recent years, there has been a significant change in watch sector. Digital platforms have made it possible for collectors to display their works and interact with other collectors across the world in virtual marketplace.We can now inspect watches in previously unheard details thanks to high resolution image and video technology. More precise identification of old watches is now possible thanks to advanced testing technology.
                From the exposure of e-commerce platforms to the influence of social media, the availability off information has fundamentally changed how people behave as consumers and collectors. In the watch industry, this has resulted in a rise in online marketplaces and a growing interest in vintage watches.

           <h1>Positive Impact of Technology</h1> <img src="../images/w0.jpg" alt="gold watch">  The digital age has greatly changed vintage watch collecting for better. Social media has created dynamic communities where followers can share insights and experiences, enabling newcomers to benefit from the wisdom of experienced collectors. Online marketplaces have opened doors to rare timepieces, allowing followers to discoveries treasures no matter where they are located. Digital archives have safeguarded historical records, simplifying the process of researching and verifying vintage watches.
               Collectors can easily check serial numbers and production dates, enabling them to make knowledgeable choices in real time using mobile apps.
International transactions are now safer and more easy thanks to growth of e-commerce services and digital payment system. Because of this the market has grown a lot and followers may now safely seek for items from all over the world.  <h1>Negative Impact of Technology</h1>  Technology has undeniably introduced a range of challenges to our community. The advancement in counterfeit manufacturing has made it increasingly difficult to identify fake vintage watches. With the help of digital editing tools, altered or refinished timepieces can easily be misrepresented as originals in online marketplaces. The raid pace of online transactions often results in impulsive buying decisions, ignoring the necessary research and caution.
               Additionally, the decline of traditional in-person interactions has taken away some of the social enjoyment that many followers value in this hobby. In general, price transparency is good, but it has occasionally caused market turbulence and speculation, which may have priced out collectors in favor of speculators who just see watches as assets.

           <h1>Conclusion</h1> Technology has transformed the vintage watch market significantly, simplifying the processes of buying, selling and verifying classic watches.
               Although there are challenges like fake watches and changing market conditions, the benefits of technology are clear. Digital platforms, social medias and to discover and acquire timeless pieces from anywhere globally. Whether you are a collector, seller or simply a fan, using technology can enhance your vintage watch journey.
